Starting Fall 2014, MTSU is offering a new general education course among its Social/Behavioral Sciences offerings – RS 2030: Religion and Society. It is also an Experiential Learning course!

The course introduces students to the academic study of religion and society, with an emphasis on the ways religion both influences and is influenced by society and human behavior. Through this framework students compare, contrast, and analyze Western, Eastern, and Indigenous religions and their relationship to society, both locally and globally. In addition to activities in the classroom, this course also involves visits to local religious communities.

Questions???

Contact: Dr. Jenna Gray-Hildenbrand - Jenna.Gray-Hildenbrand@mtsu.edu
Contact: Dr. Rebekka King – Rebekka.King@mtsu.edu