Anamnesis: The Colorado College Journal of Philosophy

Anamnesis is a student-run journal publishing essays in philosophy from colleges nation-wide. This journal seeks to provide undergraduates the opportunity to share academic work with a larger readership, as well as engender thoughtful discussion on philosophical topics. Students across disciplines are encouraged to submit, so long as their essays deal with philosophical issues. Our staff recognizes the value of feedback to the writing process, and feels that Anamnesis may serve as a space where students can analyze and respond to each other’s work. All those interested in contributing an essay can refer to the submission guidelines below.

Submission Guidelines

Format: 12 point Times New Roman font, 4000 word maximum for the paper. There is no minimum word count. Papers should not include your name or other identifying information. Please provide your paper title, name, email, and major in a separate attachment.

Citation Format: Either MLA or Chicago Citation Style are acceptable.

Deadline: All papers must be submitted via email to anamnesis@coloradocollege.edu no later than February 1st, 2016.

Originality: Only original work will be accepted. Do not submit already published material. If you plan on submitting your paper to publications other than The Colorado College Journal of Philosophy, keep us informed about its publication status.
