I. PURPOSE

Middle Tennessee State University (“MTSU”) has long utilized various committees to advise administrators on numerous critical aspects of MTSU’s mission. These committees are staffed by members of the MTSU community who offer their time and expertise to the service of MTSU. These committees are vital to the function of MTSU.

This policy sets forth the composition and general charge of each of these committees. All university committees shall perform the functions and be composed in the manner set forth in this policy. Additional detail about the procedures before any specific university committee may be provided under a separate policy or procedure, where appropriate.

II. ESTABLISHMENT OF COMMITTEES

Only the President of the University shall have the authority to establish, continue, or abolish University committees, standing, ad hoc or special purpose. Recommendations for establishing, continuing, or abolishing University committees should be received from Vice Presidents, the Faculty Senate, or the Student Government Association.

The President of the University should make all committee appointments. Except as noted in this policy, the Faculty Senate will make nominations for faculty representatives. The Faculty Senate will coordinate, as appropriate, with other offices that this policy specifies are to make nominations to the University President. Primary consideration should be given to the nominations received from the Faculty Senate, the Student Government Association, and other offices specifically designated in this policy. The President should receive faculty nominations before the beginning of the fall semester. The President should receive student nominations soon after the beginning of the fall semester.

Efforts should be made to ensure that women and minorities are represented on committees. Exceptions to these guidelines may be made as needed to provide for minority representation.

III. GENERAL PROVISIONS

A. Standing Committees -- Representation and Tenure
Each academic college should have faculty representatives on every University standing committee, but the exact number of members on a particular committee should be determined by the nature of that committee’s responsibilities.

For standing committee purposes, the Library and University College should be considered as part of the College of Mass CommunicationMedia and Entertainment, except where noted (Faculty Senate Resolution of January 14, 1991; approved by the President on February 4, 1991). On standing committees where there should be more than one representative from a college, these representatives should not be from the same department, if possible (Faculty Senate Resolution of September 4, 1985).

There should be at least two students on all University standing committees with the exception of those committees designed to deal specifically and exclusively with faculty matters. Such committees should be composed entirely of faculty members. Undergraduate student representatives should be full-time students (enrolled for 12 or more hours) and should have a grade point average of 2.0 or above at the time of appointment. Graduate student representatives may be full-time or part-time students (SGA Resolution of March 23, 1994) and should have a grade point average of 3.0 or above at the time of appointment.

Faculty appointments to university committees covered by this policy are typically two-year terms, except where noted. Two-year terms, over time, will ensure that all faculty members will have an opportunity to serve on these committees. Unless otherwise specified, faculty members eligible to serve on committees covered by this policy in a faculty representation role must be tenured or tenure-track and have served at least one year as a tenured or tenure-track faculty member at Middle Tennessee State University. In instances in which clinical-track and research-track faculty members have special expertise, training, or skills relevant to a particular committee, the Faculty Senate Steering Committee will evaluate the qualifications and render a recommendation to the University President. Also, no officer of the administration, including department heads, deans, and associate deans, shall be eligible to serve in a faculty representation role on a university standing committee. Eligible faculty members’ duties cannot be more than 50 percent administrative, as determined by their faculty workload form. All questions regarding eligibility should be made to the Faculty Senate Steering Committee, which will make the final determination regarding eligibility. Student members should be appointed for a one-year term and should be eligible for reappointment for an additional year. When possible, membership on committees should be staggered so that one half of the faculty members can be replaced each year. The definition of eligible faculty is found in the Faculty Senate By-Laws.

All faculty committee appointments should become effective at the beginning of the Fall term (interpreted to be the date of the August Faculty Meeting) and should end at the closing of the Summer term. All student committee appointments should become effective at the date of their notification. (The SGA should make their nominations as soon after the Fall semester begins as possible.)

No faculty member or student should serve on more than two standing committees at the same time. If members should fail to complete their appointed terms of service, replacements should be appointed for the unexpired term.
B. Ad Hoc University Committees

If, in the opinion of the President, a situation arises which justifies the establishment of an ad hoc committee, it is recommended that the procedure used to appoint members of standing committees be utilized unless special conditions exist which indicate a departure therefrom. Ad hoc committees should follow the same procedure as standing committees in keeping records and making reports. All ad hoc committees should report to the President or to someone designated by the President. In general, ad hoc committees should be expected to fulfill their charge within a period of two years. When an ad hoc committee has completed its charge, the President should officially dissolve the committee, and its members be so notified in writing.

C. Special Purpose Committees

If, in the opinion of the President, special purpose committees are needed to conduct University business on a continuing basis and the membership needs to be by position, these committees will not necessarily follow the appointment procedures of standing committees. Special purpose committees should follow the same procedures as standing committees in keeping records and making reports. All special purpose committees should report to the President or to someone designated by the President.

D. Committee Officers

Each standing committee should elect a chairperson and a secretary at its last meeting for the year, unless otherwise specified. These officers should assume their responsibilities for a period of twelve months. The elected chairperson shall be appointed an additional one-year term if elected in the last year of his/her appointment. The chairperson of standing committees should be a member of the teaching faculty unless otherwise specified. The chairperson should be responsible for calling meetings, setting agendas, and submitting committee reports. The President may appoint the chairperson of an ad hoc committee, which should, in turn, select its own secretary. Unless unusual circumstances require co-chairpersons, committees should not have them.

E. Ex-officio Members and Consultants

The President of the University should be an ex-officio member of all university committees. Some committees by virtue of their nature and function may need the services of additional ex-officio members and/or consultants. Such ex-officio members and/or consultants should not have voting privileges. When deemed necessary, ex-officio members and/or consultants may send representatives in their stead.

F. Committee Guidelines and Charges

All standing committees should have formal written guidelines and procedures.

The President or his/her designate should provide the initial charge, which outlines the responsibilities of the committee. The committee members should then establish procedures through which its objectives can be accomplished.
G. Committee Meetings and Records

Standing committees should meet at least once each year. Chairpersons of all committees should maintain a file of minutes. Except as stated otherwise herein, committee meetings should be conducted and minutes kept in accordance with the latest edition of Robert’s Rules of Order. A copy of the minutes should be provided to the Faculty Senate President, the SGA President, and the appropriate Vice President.

Ad hoc and special purpose committees should meet as often as necessary to accomplish their specific objectives and should follow the same general procedures as other committees.

H. Committee Reports and Reporting Procedure

All standing committees should report to a Vice President or a designee. At the end of each academic year, committees should submit to the appropriate administrator and to the Faculty Senate President and the SGA President a report of their activities during the year.

Final reports of ad hoc committees, and interim reports, if appropriate, should be forwarded to the appropriate administrator and to the Faculty Senate President.

I. Response to Committee Reports

Each administrator who has decision-making responsibilities for committee recommendations or reports should respond in writing to the appropriate committee chairperson regarding such recommendations or reports within two weeks of receiving them.

J. Recognition for Committee Service

To encourage faculty participation on University committees, it is recommended that such service be recognized as something beyond a “part of one’s job” and that the personnel record maintained for each faculty member indicate that member’s service. In accordance with “Faculty Workload Guidelines,” committee service should be considered in evaluating faculty members for retention, tenure, promotion, and salary increases.

IV. COMMITTEES

The composition and charge of all recognized University committees is set forth below. Unless specifically designated as an ad hoc or special purpose committee, all committees listed below are standing committees.
