

The Spotlight is on:

Dr. Brian P. Hinote

Brian P. Hinote (PhD, University of Alabama at Birmingham, 2007) is a specialist in the sociology of health and medicine and a member of the graduate and Aging Studies faculty at MTSU. His most recent published manuscripts examine gender, health lifestyles, and mortality in the former Soviet Union. His current research focuses on innovative ways to bring sociological insights into health care and medical practice, health and media effects in the Brazilian Amazon, and health care reform. Dr. Hinote is active in the MTSU campus community and is also a faculty member at NHC HealthCare in Murfreesboro, where he brings the study of sociology and research methods to health care practitioners in various professional and academic programs. Professor Hinote leads courses in medical sociology, health care, data analysis, and social statistics. He was recently recognized as a “professor making a real difference for graduating seniors” at Middle Tennessee State University.

So if you would like to know about sociology and health/medicine, then contact Dr. Hinote!!

Let's give him a standing ovation!!!!!!