2020–21 was a significant year in the history of Jones College. We started to recover from COVID-19 and transition back to a more normal mode of operation after the dramatic shift to online instruction we made in March 2020. It was great to return to in-person Commencement exercises in May 2021. Although the COVID-19 crisis is not entirely behind us, most of our faculty members have added to their portfolio of teaching tools. We also continue to survey our students to find out which instructional approaches work best.

Jones College achieved two major accreditation milestones in 2020–21. We completed our Continuous Improvement Review (CIR) from AACSB International, the most prestigious accrediting body for collegiate business schools worldwide. This review resulted in a five-year extension of our Business and Accounting accreditations. Our B.B.A. in Information Systems also finished a two-year process to earn accreditation from ABET, formerly the Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology. For over 80 years, ABET has promulgated the “gold standard” for quality education in Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics (STEM) fields. These badges of distinction from AACSB and ABET ensure that Jones College is delivering world-class educational programs to our students. They also add value to the degrees of our alumni.

Our ongoing quest for “national prominence and regional dominance” resulted in four other national rankings achieved in 2021 for our Finance, Supply Chain Management, Information Systems, and Entrepreneurship programs. We also gained additional regional recognition for our graduate and undergraduate Accounting programs. We topped the $1.5 million mark in annual fundraising. Jones College received the Provost’s Cup for the highest percentage participation in the yearly Charitable Giving Campaign for the eighth year in a row. Students, faculty, and alumni garnered many local, regional, national, and even international awards for their accomplishments.

Over 4,200 students have received Dale Carnegie® training in human relations, communication, and other “soft skills” since 2015. This initiative is still unique among collegiate business schools, and the effect on our students has been transformational. Our Business and Economic Research Center (BERC) and our MTSU/Murfreesboro Service Center, part of the network of service centers for the Tennessee Small Business Development Center (TSBDC), are making significant contributions to the economic development of the Greater Nashville Region. The Political Economy Research Institute (PERI) has earned recognition for its thought leadership regarding fiscal and public policy issues.

Looking ahead to 2021–22, we will pivot to implement the new AACSB 2020 Accreditation Standards, continue to build enrollment, and intensify our efforts in innovation, engagement, and societal impact. I am still excited about the prospects for Jones College in the future, and I am proud to lead the effort toward continuous quality improvement. Go Blue Raiders!
