Compliance Tip of the Month #1

Arrangements and Gifts

When accepting in-kind services and/or gifts, the following are compliance and risk management tips to remember:

1. MTSU Policy. Policy 659 – Gifts, Prizes, and Awards provides procedures and documentation regarding the acceptance of gifts of a certain amount, as well as outlines the IRS reporting information required for certain gift amounts.

2. Federal and State regulations. If a service, gift, or service arrangement could provide the appearance of violating a federal or state regulation, and/or actually does violate such regulations, avoid accepting the gift or service. Such federal and state regulations may include, but may not be limited to, any of the following:

   a. IRS rules and reporting requirements (Note: the value of the in-kind gift for an individual or agency may not be the same as the value the IRS prescribes to the in-kind gift, or allows, for tax purposes. For example, gifts of time and service are not generally considered tax deductible. Additionally, the value of a charitable donation/contribution is the reporting responsibility of the donor and not MTSU. Gifts to MTSU also must be related to the University’s mission; therefore, the gift must be program-related (academically or athletically), or related/aligned in some other way to MTSU’s mission).

   b. Healthcare regulations and statutes (Note: healthcare regulations and statutes may include such laws as Fraud and Abuse, Anti-Kickback, Beneficiary Inducement Statute, False Claims Act, prohibitions on Upcoding, prohibitions on Undercoding, violations of provider insurance contract provisions, and others).

   c. Rules and/or regulations from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, such as those from the National Institutes of Health or the Office for Human Research Protections.
