Background and History

Middle Tennessee State University has been home to fraternities and sororities since the 1960’s. Originally, governing councils were advised by three different university staff members: Dean of Women Students, Dean of Men Students and Office of Multicultural Affairs. In 1994, an initiative for on-campus Greek housing and a full-time Greek Affairs Director were successfully implemented.

The new Office of Greek Affairs set a standard of expectations for fraternity/sorority members. Councils began to take on governing responsibilities. There were new opportunities for collaboration, leadership development and student empowerment. A more consistent and measureable evaluation process was implemented.

In 2003, Tom Jelke was hired to assess the community. He identified several themes for focus and made specific recommendations for improvement. His evaluation was the foundation for the 2007 and 2009 Greek Task Forces.

In 2007, a task force was convened to address current issues in the Greek community. The result was a detailed relationship statement that was lengthy and difficult to read, identified no consequences or rewards, and lacked a strategic and implementation plan. The fraternity/sorority community has struggled to live up to expectation and its’ potential. Weaknesses in our community are due, in part, to a lack of values congruence and high turn-over rate in the Office of Greek Affairs. The potential for future success is limitless.

In the fall of 2009, the first meeting of the Greek Task Force 2009 was held. The task force was composed of fraternity/sorority students, advisors, National organization officers, and university staff. The charge was “to examine the existing structure and practices of the Greek community on the Middle Tennessee State University campus and, when appropriate, recommend enhancements to the system; and, to redefine the partnerships that exist among our students, alumni, administrators and national organizations to insure the long-term health and stability of the Greek community.”

A preliminary review of Jelke’s 2003 assessment showed limited improvement. The task force identified and prioritized relevant themes, wrote a vision and a mission statement, and identified shared core values. This groundwork guided the development of the strategic plan and a new relationship statement. The Task Force identified five target areas for strategic focus: Vision and Values Education, Academics, Recruitment/Intake, Risk and Crisis Management, and Public Relations.

The fraternity/sorority community is defined as collegiate members, governing councils, the University, fraternity alumni and sorority alumnae, advisors, and inter/national organizations. Currently, there are three governing councils acting as a liaison between chapters and the Office of Fraternity and Sorority Life and the University. There are 11 IFC chapters, 7 NPHC chapters and 7 CPH chapters on campus. Also of note, is the Office is now referred to as The Office of Fraternity and Sorority Life.

Direction and Results

As of 2016, the old Strategic Plan has expired. While the vision, mission statement and shared core values still are relevant today, the Gold Standard, the formal assessment criteria identified in the plan, is no longer utilized at MTSU. The Gold Standard did not recognize groups of different ages, sizes and strengths in a fair and consistent manner. Today, the Office utilizes the True Blue Accreditation system which allows chapters to set goals in 6 identified areas of learning, growth, service, health and safety, respect for diversity, and engagement in the community.

Additionally, the best practices and other information held within the Relationship Statement needed updating.
A Strategic Plan committee was formed in 2017 composed of fraternity/sorority students, advisors, National organization officers, and university staff. The purpose of the committee was to evaluate the previous Strategic Plan and create the next integration of it to move the FSL community at MTSU forward through 2022.

The committee identified the following as target areas for strategic focus: Public Relations/Communication with Constituents, Recruitment/Retention, Academic Success, and Leadership.

Design and Implementation

The committee agreed that all complementary documents that guide the strategic process should be easy to read, understand, and use for all constituents. Much of the 2011 documents needed updating to reflect today’s practices and to be further simplified.
