

Caroline Acree graduated from MTSU in August 2022 with her Master of Science in Management with a focus in Organizational Leadership, and here she shares her perspective about the program and how it has helped her in her career thus far:

"The Management and Organizational Leadership program available at Middle Tennessee State University is a master's program inclusive of all the steps I was looking for to catapult myself into the next level as a marketing leader. Through continued education, I could better my abilities as a leader to support my teammates in our decision-making, problem-solving, and critical thinking skills.

I am currently a Senior Product Marketing Manager for the Clinical Development vertical at HealthStream, a publicly traded healthcare technology company based in Nashville. During the program and still to this day, I find myself consistently working to improve my behaviors based on my class learnings. I find myself opening my mind based on my different class teachings about negotiation, business ethics, motivation, leadership, organizational development, and strategic decision making.

The more I studied, the more I improved how I can best support my team. The more I read, the more I noticed my mind expanding to think outside the box. The more I learned, the more excited I was to share my master's education with the team at HealthStream, supporting the healthcare industry with a forward-thinking perspective. I hope to continue a career in marketing or similar field, aligning myself with charitable missions and innovative companies who work for the greater good."

Check out the M.S. Management, Organizational Leadership Program here! ->

<https://www.mtsu.edu/programs/management-ol-ms/>