7. The homepage of the Notebook displays.

- Notebooks can contain Sections and then Pages within those sections.
- Sections serve as “tabs” to help organize the content.
- Pages are notebook pages that function like word processing documents or web pages. This is where you can record your notes in text, image, video, audio, or any/all of those formats. Hyperlinks to web pages and drawings can also be inserted.

8. Create a Section by clicking the Add Section link in the lower left corner.

- Consider naming your sections after the courses or elements of the project for which the OneNote notebook is being used.

9. Click the Add page link in the center to add a page to that section.
10. Note the display of the elements on the OneNote page.
   A. Section
   B. Page
   C. Notes space
   D. Toolbar for inserting and formatting.

11. Give the Page a title by clicking on the line on the right-hand side of the screen, where the title of the notes would appear.
   • Consider naming the page after specific topics or activities so that it is easily identifiable to you and any others with whom you will share your notebook.

12. Add notes to the body of the page, using the tool bar to format text or insert images, videos, audio, etc.
   • The system is set to automatically save pages as you are composing.

13. Pages and sections can be rearranged by clicking and dragging these items in the left-hand portion of the window.
   (Click and drag the section tab or click and drag a page by clicking on the page title in the second column.)
