Program Goals: Online Specialist in Education (Ed.S.)
Specialization Culture, Cognition Learning Process

Engage students in examining the most critical ongoing, as well as newly emerging, issues of diversity in America with a focus on social justice in society.

Prepare students to incorporate issues of diversity in daily life and work.

Encourage students to examine attitudes toward diverse ethnic and cultural groups, develop ways to combat racism, sexism, classism, and other forms of discrimination in classrooms, schools, and communities.

Guide students to develop practical knowledge of learning theories and build an awareness of applications of learning theories and human development principles in a variety of settings.

Introduce students to the broad topics of multicultural education and diversity as related to today’s society and schools.

Introduce students to recent developments in neuroscience, education, and psychology, and their impact on teaching and learning.

Dr. Barbara N. Young Barbara.young@mtsu.edu
Program Coordinator/Advisor / Ed.S. Degree
Specialization: Culture, Cognition, and the Learning Process
Please visit the website for detailed information. https://byoung2017.com/